

If portable cell-phone numbers aren't necessary for competition, why is it that the largest companies are petitioning to have the rule suspended permanently. If portability wasn't needed for competition, why aren't the smaller companies, that find it more difficult to break into the market, asking for the change? Also, ask yourself what the people want?